DESIGN STATEMENT

Passion • Adaptability • Wellness

My passion for design began at a young age with my chalk-drawn floor plans on the driveway and has only grown with time. As a kid, I was always designing new houses, cruise ships, RVs, et cetera. Throughout my life, I loved not only the organizational and creative aspect, but actually talking to different people and designing a house or space to fit their specific needs. I believe that a space should reflect the people who inhabit it; therefore, I try to always incorporate any and every unique aspect of the client or company's life into the space I design for them. This gives clients a sense of comfort, changing the way they feel about coming home, or to work, or whatever the space may be.

I have always been inspired by the world and the people around me, and I hope to incorporate the uniqueness of each person and place into my designs. I am especially intrigued by the concepts of universal design and design for well-being. Every one of us has different abilities, and those should be celebrated, not minimally accommodated for. Spaces should be adaptable for each person that may use it. In my own designs, I aim to go above and beyond to provide spaces for all types of people. A large part of providing for all ages and abilities is creating a space that also supports the idea of well-being. This often includes sustainability, bringing the outside in, and encouraging the people to continue to practice these ideas of wellness; all things I intend to include in my designs.

I truly believe that design can have an immense impact on the lives of the people immersed in the spaces, and I strive to make that impact a good one. I hope to better the lives of others through design and find a way to help people discover or display their own passion through my passion.

BEYOND THE PAGES

Senior Living Design

Location: Dunwoody, GA
Date: Winter 2019

A home for seniors to share their legacies.

Beyond the Pages is a collaborative Independent Living Community focused on giving seniors a chance to share their legacy with other members of the community in many different ways. The space will encourage residents to get out of their shell, inspiring them to find meaning in their own lives. By allowing the seniors to share their legacy, they are given a chance to share knowledge they learned from their career, tell stories about their families, and enjoy new experiences with other generations ranging from pre-schoolers to young adults. These things, in turn, give the residents a sense of purpose, helping with isolation, loneliness, and overall wellbeing.

Project Goals

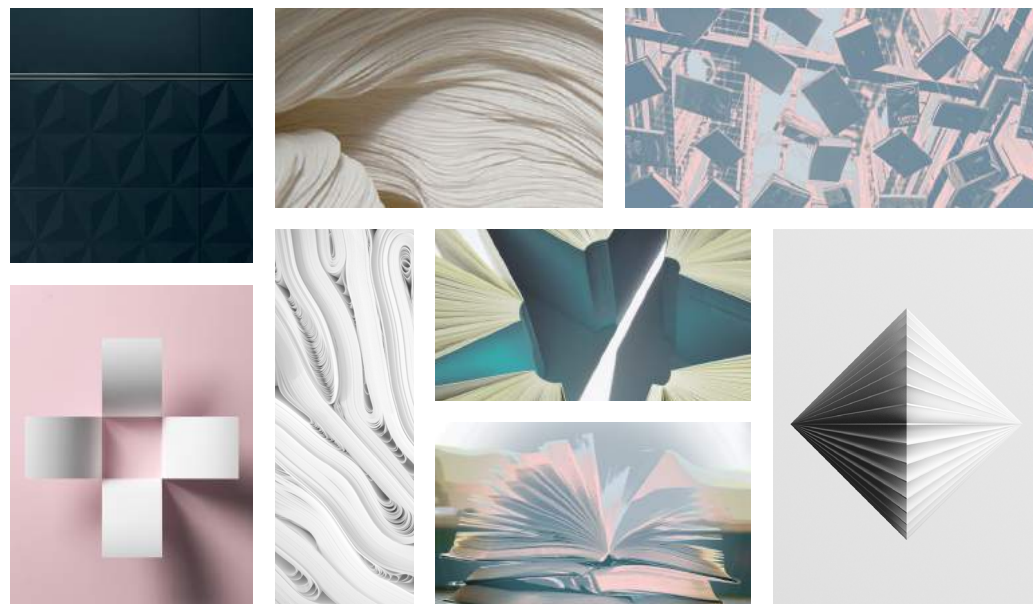

People are generally motivated by five main things: career, love, family, new experiences, and legacy. The focus of this particular space is to allow seniors to share their legacy with outside community members in order to reincorporate these motivation factors into their lives. Seniors are able to share their legacy through spaces that encourage learning, teaching, sharing & collaborating, supporting, and engaging.

Concept | Beyond the Pages

The idea of legacy is not just the stories being shared, but the impact those stories have on others.

There are many bits and pieces in a book that must work together to create the full story; however, what truly matters is what comes after. Every good story has a lasting impact; all the memories, knowledge, and lessons are a part of a bigger picture. Stories engage us with the first line, they immerse us with enthralling stories, and they inspire us with morals and new ideas.

Beyond the Pages will encourage its residents and visiting community members to not only share their stories, but to change each others lives and come out with a newfound acceptance and appreciation.

Workplace Design

Location: Savannah, GA

Date: Winter 2018

An adaptable office for workplace wellness.

Enerspace invites anyone from big businesses to individuals to rent out short-term or long-term office space in a flexible, wellness focused workplace. The office provides workers with many different working preferences including ergonomic office chairs, balance chairs, standing desks, and group seating. Concept | Involuntary Fascination

Involuntary fascination means subconsciously triggering the mind into feeling a certain way or wanting to know more. Things that are subtle and simple, yet at the same time bold, attract the brain's attention and create a sense of involuntary fascination, something so powerful, you have to keep looking, or keep coming back.

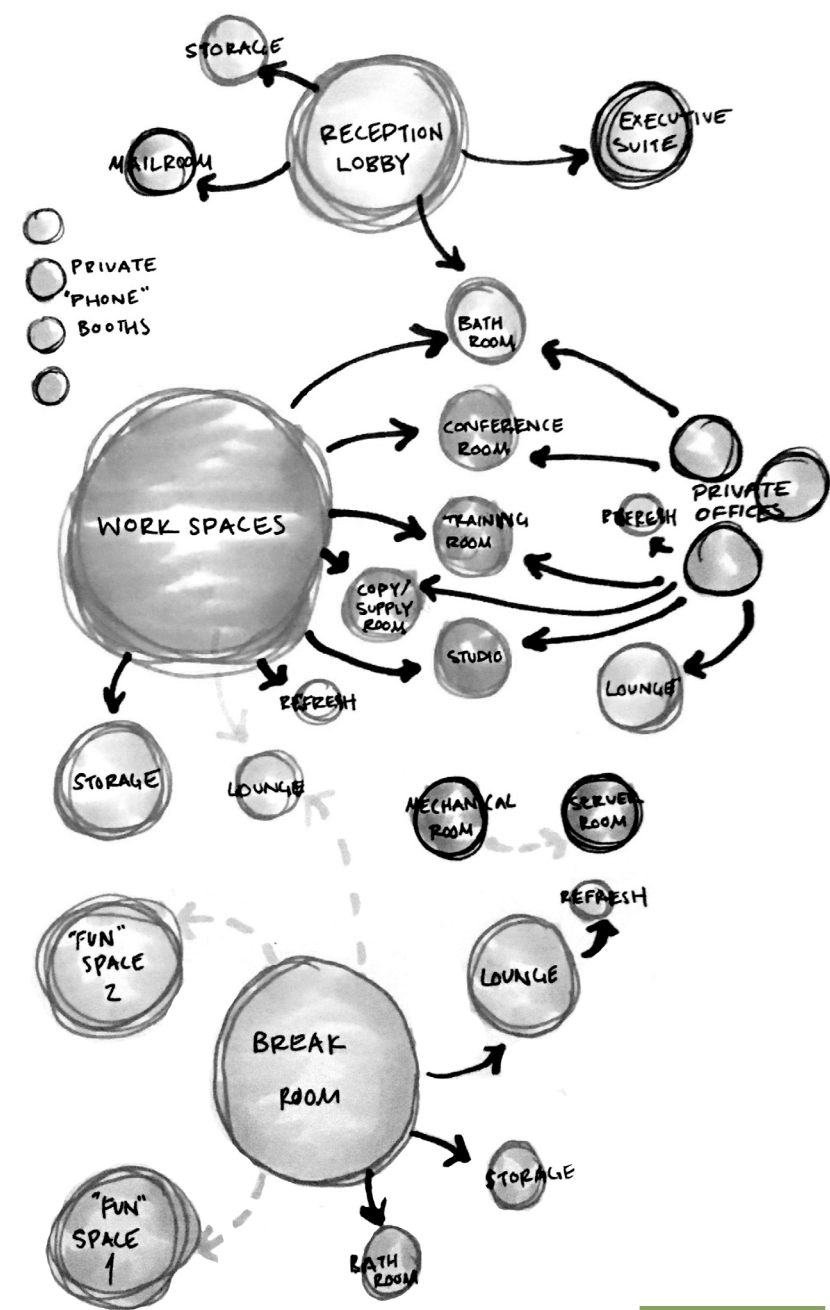

Reception

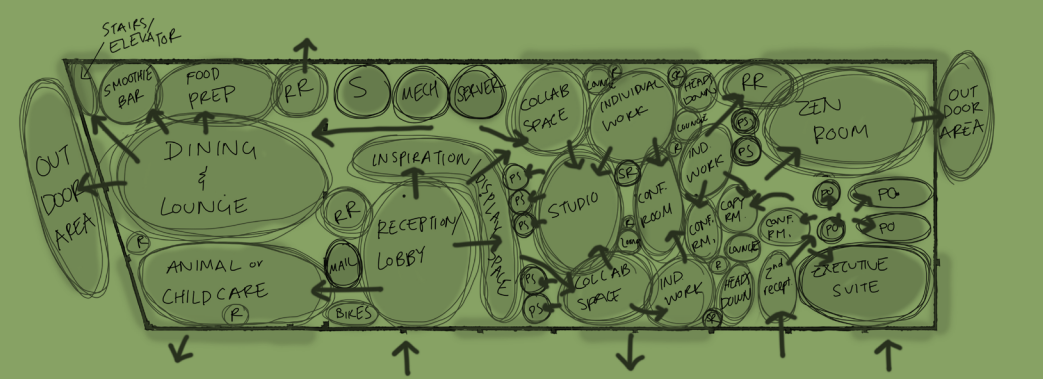

Project Goals

This project focused on sustainability and the environment. This is promoted through sustainable materials and furniture, as well as the incorporation of nature (i.e. moss walls and daylighting) and biophilic design (i.e. natural patterns and shapes) into the space.

Project Inspiration

Foster Records was designed greatly with the clients' visually-impaired daughter in mind, in order to give her a place she could enjoy as much as anyone else could. This is done through intuitive wayfinding with wide walkways and minimal sharp corners. There is high contrast in the colors and textures, along with bright lighting. The record and memorabilia areas are labeled with braille and the wallcoverings are large braille dots.

LUXARITY POP-UP

Retail Design

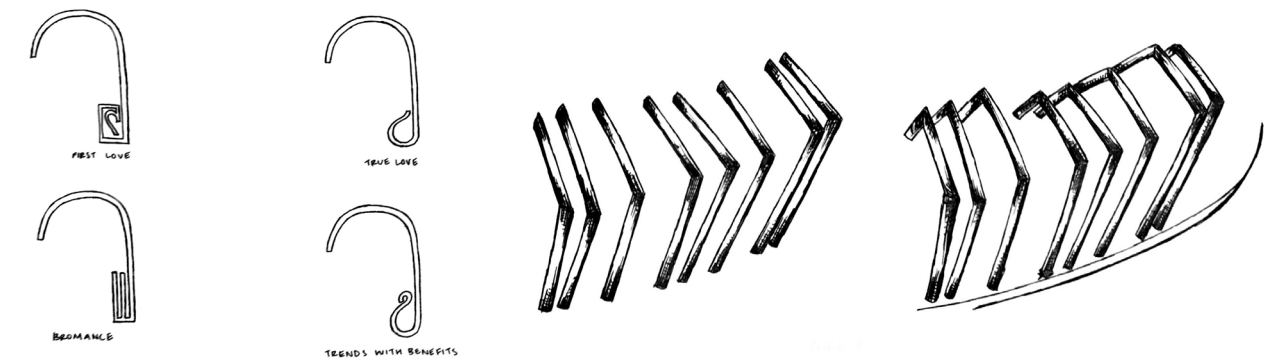

Project Description

This design is a pop-up shop for a charity branch of a high-end retail company. My team and I worked with an advertising team who provided us with the general concept.

The floor plan for the shop was designed based on the company's logo and each section was designed to fit the specific theme of the section, yet still coherent with the rest of the design. It was designed to have a clean and luxurious feel while remaining cost-effective.
